

Volunteer Internship: Field Organizer for High School and College Students

Location: East Bay Area (Remote and In-Person Opportunities)

Position: Field Organizer (Volunteer Internship)

Responsibilities:

- Canvassing: Work directly in the community, engaging with local residents to share Lynda Deschambault's vision. Students will distribute materials, gather feedback, and help inform voters about the importance of this campaign.
- Phone Banking: Students will call voters to communicate campaign messages, answer questions, and encourage support. This is an excellent way to gain confidence in public speaking and advocacy.
- Campaign Coordination: Assist with planning and coordinating campaign events, managing volunteer efforts, and supporting outreach initiatives. This hands-on experience will provide students with valuable project management skills.
- Student Outreach: High school and college students will collaborate to promote campaign events, register voters, and recruit additional volunteers from their schools and communities.

Benefits for Students:

- Gain valuable experience in community outreach, campaign strategy, and public relations—skills highly sought after by colleges and future employers.
- Engage with leaders in climate change, conservation, and public service, providing an excellent networking opportunity.
- Enhance your resume with a meaningful volunteer role that demonstrates leadership, initiative, and a commitment to civic engagement.

This internship is perfect for high school and college students passionate about environmental advocacy and community service, offering a unique opportunity to make an impact while gaining essential skills for the future.
